WHEN FOOT ODOR IS MORE THAN JUST SWEATY FEET – A CASE OF PITTED KERATOLYSIS

A DERM DIARIES DERMATOLOGY CASE

Our recent patient was a healthy teenage athlete with a complaint many people find embarrassing but rarely seek medical attention for—persistent foot odor. Despite good hygiene practices, frequent sock changes, and over-the-counter powders, the odor persisted. On examination, we noticed numerous tiny crater-like depressions on the weight-bearing areas of the soles, leading to a diagnosis of pitted keratolysis.

Pitted keratolysis is a common but often underrecognized bacterial skin infection that affects the soles of the feet. It is often seen in athletes, military personnel, healthcare workers, and others who spend long hours in occlusive footwear.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Skin conditions can be a sign of underlying health issues. Consulting a dermatologist is key for proper treatment and evaluation.
